“ Kim - Its been a long time since I last seen u driving that bomber of a car and pulling into the depot with Cassandra like a bat out of hell and I just always remember smiling and laughing thinking to myself that girl has lost her mind. I know Cassandra misses u alot and so do I. I will never forget your smile and your shy ways RIP see you on the other side.

“ Dearest Kimberly I never met you, but your picture looks so much like your mother the last time I saw her. I was searching on the internet to see how your Aunt Esther was doing and I came across your details. I just wanted to leave a note to your mother to say how saddened I was to learn about this sad news. Such a beautiful smile. x “ hey .. been awhile - sorry i always was not great about getting back with you. been thinking about you alot .. about life and death and how life is a part of death and vise versa. grampa is pretty sick i guess you heard. that's been hard on the whole family. feels like i haven't seen you in forever. and i haven't. i think about where your life would have taken you by now. time flies by - it will be 4 years. i was going through an old box of pictures a few days ago and like a splinter in the box, i came upon a stack of your pictures. made me sad .. and happy - you had a way of doing that to me. guess i'll go for now .. miss you kimmy - miss being a kid, carefree, no responsibilites, just excited to wake up the next day and make someone smile. guess that's how God intended it to be - happy.

“ Hey man :) Whew the life of a mom is busy! Sorry it's been a little bit. I didn't forget about you though. We just went to FI about a month ago and Gram and Gramps came too. It was so nice to see them. My dad retired so we all met there for the ceremony. It was neat because no one had seen Halie. Madison and Halie got to play together. They are both growing up so quickly. Halie can already roll over one way - she's a fire ball of energy .. you can barely hold her sometimes without her flinging herself out of your arms. She's alot of fun too though and adds a whole new element to life .. wish daily that you could have met her and jason (we just hit our one year anniversary) but know that one day we'll all be together worshipping God and enjoying one another for eternity - I am anxious to see you. On another note, Grampa isn't doing too good. I imagine Gramma told you since she sees you everyday but thought I'd mention it on here too. Turns out he has cancer. I don't really know what to say. This past year and a half has been a whirlwind of one thing after another and it feels like it's never going to stop throwing new - terrible things at us. It started with my Grampa Peacock having a stroke and honestly it's been alot of headache and change since then (with the exception of a few wonderful things like my husband and baby and family is always good). I want you to know that honestly, your passing has been very hard... on everyone. We're all missing you and thinking about you and the joy that you brought us and the pain that we now have - the void that can not be filled because it was there because of you. It happened so fast - all of it. That it really feels like an awful nightmare that can't possibly be true. I often think back to the last time I saw you before I went to basic training and the meaningful conversation that we had - I was glad that you came to me. I'll try to write more soon. I miss you buddy .. I miss you.

“ Hey KimmyGeeze - I haven't been keeping true to what I told you about writing you every month. Sorry man. Anyway, alot has happened since I last wrote in July. I ended up having to stay a few nights in the hospital in Arizona with a gallbladder issue. My baby girl was born on October 7th .. We named her Halie Grace like I mentioned. She's adorable. I know that you would love her. Cas had her baby too and named her middle name after you. Sarah had her baby on Halloween and her middle name is after you also. Everybody is missing the heck out of you! Gram goes up and visits you every day and it's just so hard to believe that we're going on our second Christmas without you. I think about you alot and sometimes get a little bit overwhelmed. We were out today and we drove by a burial and I got very sad thinking about you, but it also took me back to some good times that we shared. I only regret that we don't have more of those. I guess life here has been pretty good. Seems like things are always changing. It's already snowing again which seems so fast. It's so exciting to watch Halie in everything that she does and I really enjoy being a mom. She's for sure the brightest spot in my life next to Jason. I know you are enjoying the wonder of heaven - and what an awesome place it must be. You should know that we're all missing you and that I am deffinitely missing my little Kimmy. There won't ever be an adventure hike quite like the one we went on and there can't ever be another girl quite as cool as you. I think of you often and I will try to write more frequently. I love you man and miss you like crazy ;)

“ Hey 'Kimber' - Long time has passed without you in it and let me know that you are surely missed by many many people. You touched so many hearts before your job on earth was done. Dad, the kids and I miss you greatly. Sorry I have written, at all, but you always knew how hard it was for me to get me feelings out...and when they did you and I shared them together. Your dad and I laugh each and every time we wonder what it is you are doing. You sure let us know when you are around though. The sunsets you leave at the day's end, the kitchen 'cupboard' that wasn't opened before or that little noise that goes thump in the night...your dad and I say 'yep...there's Kim'. You are never too far when our hearts are heavy missing you. We can feel you grabbing out to hold us and make us laugh. We miss you and love ya kid! Rhonda and Dad

“ Hey Kimmy :) Well you would have graduated last month. That tears me up. I guess Collin graduated .. and Cas. I need to call and congratulate her. I know this was a terrible year for her with even getting homeschooled. I know that you were real excited about graduation and taking a trip over the summer. I looked forward to that for you too. Well I have a really big surprise that I am doing in a few weeks - you'd be so excited to know about it. You were so excited that one time. Man it's so hot here lately and I am getting very big! I have the big prego tummy and I've gained like 40 something pounds. I am so anxious for October to get here so I can hold my little one. Sarah is naming her baby Madison Kimberly after you - did I tell you that? We thought about naming ours after you too but we want her to have a separate identity and those are some pretty big shoes to fill ;) We've had some really amazing lightening storms lately - I often think about what amazing things you must be seeing .. I long for that. You know those Lance Armstrong bracelets - the yellow ones? Well the kids at your school made up some of those in remembrance of you. My Mom sent me mine. It's purple. You'd be so flattered if you knew we were all wearing those things to remember you - too bad we never do that stuff when people are alive so that know how much we love and care about them. My family is headed up to NY next week to visit everyone - I know you would have been excited about that. I'm sure that they'll stop in and see you. Well, I guess I'll let you go for now - wanted to drop you a line and let you know that I was thinking about you and that I love you .. Missing your voice. Goodnite Kim.

June 25, 2005 at 12:00 AM

“ Hey Kimmy :) Well, what a month. Jason graduated College - so proud of him. So I met his extended family and his parents came out. It was a good visit. They got us so much stuff for the baby and some stuff for the house too so that was really nice. Joe Marzo is in jail for everything that has happened. I guess he has some years of probation too. I bet it's been hard on him and his family as well. I try to remember him and his family in prayer when I pray for strength in our own. Everyone has suffered in this. it's been especially hard on Gram - she misses you're daily company like crazy - and rightly so. anyway on a lighter note, Sarah finds out on Tuesday if she's having a girl or a boy ... can't wait to find out what she's having! Cassie is having a girl just like me and then Katie is having a boy. It's so crazy. I'm due on October 13th, Cassie's due on the 22nd, and Sarah is due on Nov 3rd. So it's all really close. Everyone is hoping that Cas doesn't have her baby on the 21st :( I don't think that you would care but it would be sort of hard on people. Man been missing you this month my friend. Especially with all the baby excitement. Just wish I could really share these things with you and you could respond back. It's crazy just writing you on here. I promised the last time we talked that I would keep in touch so that's why I am trying to write monthly. I love you Kim - you're a great cousin. Hanny :)

“ Hey Kimmy :)WELL! You'd be excited to know that I am having a baby girl in October! I am around 19 weeks right now and we went a few days ago and got to see her kicking all over the place in there. We're really excited about her . . we are thinking about naming her Halie Grace. What do ya think? We're spelling Halie a little bit different because we want to eventually have another daughter and we're thinking about naming her Cali. We also considered using your name as Halie's middle name but we decided against it because someone else is - I'll have to tell you who later cause no one is supposed to know. The official due date is the 13th of October. Hopefully it's not like the 21st even though I know you'd be excited regardless of when the baby was born. I feel really bad that you're not here to see me pregnant and go shopping for my little one. Man dude I miss you like crazy. Finished up my 4th semestar of college. I know you'd be proud. Hey Kim, I was thinking earlier about when you came to NC to visit one time and we had a squirt gun fight in my front yard. I had a good time . . . because you were there. I remember going to the beach with you, Kev, your dad, Aunt Sandy, Linda and my family one time too. I remember you and I out there pretty deep getting pelted with waves and almost getting sucked under. It was worth it though even if it did leave us bruised and scraped. I really miss just hanging out and doing stuff like that with you. I know that we didn't live too close but I always felt close to you. I am sorry that I never went to school with you when you wanted me to be your guest when you were in like 5th grade ;) I remember you wanted me to do that. By the way, Gramma hasn't been doing too good. She misses you tons. I hope you know how much we all love you and mis you . . . Better let you go for now but I told you that I'd write you and tell you what we're having as far as the baby goes :) I love you Kimmy and you're never far from any of my thoughts.I love you,Hanny

“ Hey Kimmy :) Sorry it's been over a month .. been trying to wait a little longer so that I can tell you if I am having a girl or a boy - we find out in 6 days!!!! So excited :) This month has been alright. Sad on your birthday man. You don't have to worry though. Gramma and Aunt Lynn brought the cake up to you -you can't go a birthday without that singing cake ;)I had a dream about you a few weeks ago and it was that you came back to see us. Gramma and the whole family was there and you came back and talked to us about how wonderful heaven was and what happened when you got there. Then I told you that everyone's been missing you like crazy. I asked you if you missed us too and you said that you didn't !! You said that you knew that you'd see us soon and you were having such a great time up there that you didn't think of us much - brat! It kind of gave me some peace though even though I miss you almost all the time. Well Cassie said she goes and visits you but you know she can't go to prom and they may not let her even go to graduation! She wanted to get a picture of you on her cap so that you would be there too but they didn't order her a cap or gown and they said she can't go. It's pretty messed up. I worry about Gramma - she's been doing alright but I know this isn't something that will ever be okay ~ we just really miss you man. The bad thing is that my due date for the baby and Cassie's is really close to the 21st .. so everyone's hoping the babies don't come on that day. I know you would be excited no matter when they come though. I guess I am not as concerned with that because I miss you everyday whether it's that day or not. I so much wish you could have met Jason and the baby. I feel sort of like I've turned into an adult since your death and it makes me sad that you're not here to grow with me. I'm probably going to write you again when we find out if it's a girl or boy next week so I won't be too long winded today. Just wanted to let you know why I was later than I said. I'm sticking to keeping in touch with you.. You have alot of catching up to do when I meet you. I love you Kimmy .. forever.

“ Hey Kimmy.. It's me, Hanny, again. I feel like talking with you right now and telling you about everything that is going on in life. You would so freak and be excited if you were here and what kind of a cousin would I be if I didn't tell you about everything. Man, I've missed you like crazy my friend. Gramma sent me a couple of your senior pictures for my birthday. I remember when we were both so chubby lol .. you were always beautiful and you are execeptionally so in your pictures that I got. Whelp, I moved to Colorado like I told you I was going to. I switched my base over and stuff. Guess what else!? I got married :) I wish so much you would have gotten to meet Jason. I know you would have loved him so much. We're having the ceremony in July in Florida .. I always wanted you to be there - in my wedding and I wanted to be in yours. One day you and Jason will meet - He's really looking fwd to it. I've told him alot about you. You're not going to believe what else is going on in my life! I am pregnant :) We are so excited! If it's a girl we're going to name her Hailey Grace and if it's a boy we're thinking about either Caleb, Seth, or Logan. Which one do you like the best? Nevermind you like names like Anani (hehe jk with ya man). Anyway, you're birthday is coming up soon. I'm probably going to cry because I still, after 5 months, can not force myself to believe that you're not here anymore. The whole thing is mind boggling and the saddest thing I've ever been through. I've been thinking lately about the letters you wrote me when I went to Basic Training a year and a half ago. I don't even know if I ever wrote you back. They meant alot to me. You told me how proud you were of me. That was so special. You know, I was proud of you too. I was proud of you for your work in school and how you got that job at the country club like my mom. Seemed like you were really growing up. I remember talking with you that previous week about how we had to keep in better touch. Well I'm sorry that I've been a bad cousin and I haven't kept in good touch. I may write you sometimes on here so we can keep in touch. I was telling Jason about how that one Christmas, Aunt Millie tried to steal your stuffed animal lol. I felt so bad for you and you were so upset about that. Gee. I remember talking with you the October before last. I was taking a bath in Maxine's bathroom and you were sitting there talking with me. We both talked about everything - our fears, our hopes, our dreams, our life. As promised, I haven't told anyone the details about what we talked about. You know in light of that conversation and to answer your concern, you do not have to worry about me anymore and I don't have to worry about you and be protective over you anymore either. I trust God to do that now until we meet again :) That was one of the most meaningful conversations I've ever had Kim. I will never forget that. You are special to me - one of the most special, precious things that has ever happened to me and I hope you knew that. You know, many times I think back to Octoboer 21st last year and wish you were sick like Cas or that Gramma would have made you stay home - So many times I wish that. Sadly, somewhere deep inside, I know that this happened for some sort of reason and to be honest with you - I don't think that I will ever understand it .. ever. There will always be a permanent hole in my heart for you - longing to be filled by your fun loving personality but never able to. I hope you're having fun in heaven :) You better be dancing and singing and living it up man!!! I can't wait to be up there with you - we're gonna have a blast .. you'll have to show me around. I hope that they have a gully because we're long over due on another adventure. I guess I'll close for now but I'll write more soon - I promise. I miss you like crazy and I love you alot.

“ I was in Reality Check with Kim for quite awhile. When I met her I realized right away that she is a wonderful, happy person and that she would do anything for the people she cared about. It's such a loss when the world loses someone like Kim, especially at such a young age. RIP Kim...you will be missed so much. My thoughts and prayers go out to all of her family and friends, and I hope God gives you the strength to cope with such a loss.

“Kimmers, Where do I begin? I guess with I love you. I never imagined that I would be sitting here writing this. I can't imagine what your last thought may have been that day. I can only imagine what you're seeing and feeling now in Gods Presence. I know that the Lord has you now and only wish, selfishly; you were still here with us. I have watched you grow from such a small child, through the years. Growing ever more into a young lady. Although 17 years are not enough for any of us to appreciate fully the young lady you had become. I know now of the many lives you have touched. I have met so many that have told me what a difference you have made in their lives and the lives of others. I guess sitting back now, no one can truly appreciate the friends that someone has, until sadly, they are gone. There were many late nights, school nights no doubt, I watched you pop on to your IM and I would get a quick "Hey UG" and my reply was a?" Go to bed Kim it's late. Oddly, that will be missed. You were more then a niece to me, you were a good friend. Bet you know what I will miss most of all next to that smile of yours. That's right, those outstretched arms ready to give out a hug while you screamed "U G" with a barrage of friends following you into KB almost every Monday night over the summer. This past week has been very hard for me. The only thing that keeps me going is my faith in God. If I didn't have that I would not be able to have been strong for the family for as long as I did. I know that when God calls me into his fold that you will be there with a huge hug and a "UG". That will be a day I will long to see. They say that time heals all wounds; I am not so sure I believe that will happen for me. "This world was never meant for someone as beautiful as you." Kimmers, You, your Mom and Dad, Brothers and Sisters and your entire family are in my prayers Daily. You were an extraordinary young lady and will be missed. Now the hard part, I am not sure how to end this. I guess, again, with I love you and go to bed Kim it's Late. I will leave you now with everlasting hugs. Love "UG"

“ Kim-you and cassandra have always both been my little sisters. you two were 'twins without the dna proof' as cassandra would say. i remember the first time we met. you and cassi weren't even in kindergarden yet, and we all sat on my swing set talking and getting to know each other while our dads hung out together. you introduced me to your cousin hannah who is one of my best friends ever. i always thought it was cool that you and cassi were best friends, and so were me and your cousin. i always felt like it was my duty to protect you and cassandra, and i only wish that there was something that i could have done that day-but it was out of my hands. i ask god why this had to happen to you-and to us, but i know deep down that it was meant to be. you are a beautiful girl, and i will especially remember our AWESOME summer together this year. you, cassandra, janay, erick and val practically lived together at my house. we wanted to make sure cassandra had a good summer despite her surgery, and i know that we succeeded. we always pictured you in our lives, at our weddings, babysitting our kids, making them call you 'aunt kim', and just getting old together. we said that us three were the 'same person', and now i feel like a part of me is missing that i'll never gain back. you told us that when you died you would come back as a crow and caw at us from outside our windows. you were one of the funniest people i knew, and sometimes i would wonder how in the world you and cassandra could laugh for soooo long about absolutly nothing. i want to leave you with a little saying that we learned from our arabic friends- ada habeck habibi owi owi, and that's as true now as it will always be kim. *much love*

“ That life should be taken from someone who constantly took so much joy in it, is a pure tragedy. I've never met anyone that is always so happy, good-spirited and funny as Kim. Kim, I am so glad that I got to meet you through Maxine and Cassandra and am proud to be able to have called you a friend. I am only sorry that I didn't get to spend even more time with you. My last memory of you is when you suddenly had the idea to throw peanut butter at my roommate, Seanboy. I didn't want to make my roommate mad, but when I saw the huge smile on your face from your idea I had to say it was OK because I knew it would be a funny memory. Minutes later, I was holding his legs and you were throwing peanut butter at him, to his surprise. You always had a way of putting a smile on everyone's face, and now the memories you have left us all with will eventually bring smiles back to our faces when we think of you.

“ I am a sixty-six year old father who did not know any of these young ladies nor their families; but want to extend my deep and heart-felt sympathy to all who knew and loved them! I too lost my beloved son at age twenty-two. My only comfort is knowing that he is with the Heavenly Father, and I know that these three wonderful young ladies are now with Him also. May God grant them eternal peace! R.C. Wayne

“ Kimberly...although I only saw you when you were a little girl...I always knew you were special. Nicole is having a really tough time accepting this..and the fact that you are gone...but I told her that even though I struggle to understand why things like this happen to such young and wonderful people, there is a reason for everything..even when we don't know what it is...and I find it comforting to know that an angel as sweet as you is up there watching over us. You will never be forgotten! My thoughts and prayers are with our entire family during this tough time.

“ I still remember the first letter you sent me. Your grandma had shown me the envelope that had your name and address printed neatly on the front. I was so excited to receive a letter from my cousin I heard so much about! That was almost four or five years ago that I had read the first of many letters. I'll miss that anticipation of your letters. Your words filled me with more than happiness. They filled me with a warmth that will never be forgotten. I love you so much and I will always remember you.

October 24, 2004 at 12:00 AM

“ Don, Ruth, Judy, Don, Kevin and all -Words simply can not express the sadness I feel over this loss. I know I haven't been that close to Kimberly in a while but she was such a special young lady - her presence will be sorely missed. My thoughts and prayers are with all of you during this awful time. I love you all. Margaret

October 24, 2004 at 12:00 AM

“ I have known Kimberly her whole life and yet I didn't know her hardly at all. From what I have learned about her in these last few days is that she had a huge zest for life, a passion for her friends, a giant capacity for love and a strong spirituality. From that we know she has gone to be with the Lord and we will see her again with her welcoming arms spread wide and a big smile on her beautiful face. I will never forget her.
