“ Sue and I met at elementary school. I remember going over to her family's great old house after school and eating peanut butter sandwiches. We met again in high school and occasionally left early to eat another of those pb&j's. We've continued our relationship in fits and starts (more my fault than hers) over these many years via U.S. Mail, e-mail and the occasional marathon phone call when I'd be back home in Syracuse. Sue's caring and passion for her many interests never ceased to amaze me. She's frequently in my thoughts, never more so than today, as I take the time to reflect on all those great (and a few not so great) times we shared over the better part of 50 years. To Guy, Mrs. Quantrille and the rest of her family, please accept my condolences and know Sue will always be in my heart. Debbie Citron

“ It has been said, "No one has greater love than this, than to lay down one's life for one's friends." This description truly applies to Sue, even (I suspect) in more than a mere figurative sense...Most mornings the last few months I would wake up to find her passed out in her chair in the living room after being up all night with restless leg or one of her other health problems. Her only comment would be, "Did you know I was up in the middle of the night? I didn't wake you, did I?", and then she would get up to fix a healthy breakfast for the two of us. On those rare occasions when she happened to sleep through the night, I would get up and start breakfast, only to be chided a few minutes later with, "You're too polite about disturbing people's sleep." Sue had a rare gift for connecting with people and bringing them together. She even managed to make something of a human being out of me -- no small task (as I'm sure she'd be the first to tell you :) I hope she's resting well and enjoying that new, pain-free, healthy body of hers...

“ Dear Guy, I don't know if you remember me from Eisenhower College, where I was on the faculty. I was saddened to read of your loss. Though I did not know Susan, she must have been a wonderful person to be with someone like you. Please accept my deepest condolences.

“ Although we never met Sue, we grieve with her loving husband, Guy, our friend, chanter and choir member, and with her family and friends. May Our Lord and Savior receive her into His kingdom and may her memory be eternal!

“ I've known Sue since I was a junior in high school and though our friendship has had periods when we weren't in touch we recently reconnected and discovered how much alike we still were and could still share our thoughts and laugh. Sue loved her husband and family and I will miss talking and e-mailing with her every day that remains of my life. I know that she is at rest and in the Lord's care and for that I'm thankful.
